- 2. You can change your beneficiaries at any time by submitting a new IRA Designation of Beneficiary form.
- 3. In the event that a named primary beneficiary predeceases the account owner, the deceased beneficiary's designated portion of the account will be allocated among the surviving primary beneficiaries on a pro rata basis, except for designations of lineal descendants or lineal descendants per stirpes. If there are no remaining primary beneficiaries, then the assets will be allocated among the designated secondary beneficiaries.

- 5. In the event of divorce and a former spouse is a designated beneficiary, the former spouse will be treated as having predeceased the IRA owner, unless the designation was made after the divorce or a court order provides otherwise.
- 6. Beneficiaries cannot be named on a minor IRA.
- 7. A minor may be named as a beneficiary. In the event that the IRA owner dies while the beneficiary is still a minor, a parent or guardian must maintain control of the account until the beneficiary reaches legal age.
- 8. A non-U.S. citizen or nonresident alien may be named as a beneficiary. Beneficiary distributions may be subject to withholding at the applicable treaty rate.
